Abstract - This work presents a new method for automatic segmentation of the region of interest (ROI) of thermographic breast images. The ROI that is each breast (left and right) is extracted by a developed algorithm. A main use of the approach includes automatic detection of pathologies by texture symmetric analysis. This work was realized using images captured at HC, Clinics’ Hospital of the Pernambuco Federal University.

Introduction